Nazi Leaders To Focus Attention From Baltic View

By FREDERICK KUIH
British Daily News, Exclusive Cable to the Edmonton Bulletin.
LONDON, July 5. - Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was expected to announce in the House of Commons today that any unilateral (one-sided) change in the status of Poland without Poland's free consent would automatically bring the British-Polish military alliance into operation.

LONDON, July 7. - Belief was expressed in unofficial quarters today that the German leaders might shift their immediate attention from Danzig to southeast Europe during an apparent lull in tension between Germany and Poland.

Several observers thought Great Britain's declaration of support for Poland appeared to have averted a conflict over Danzig—at any rate for the time being.

"Watch the Balkans," the Daily Mail (independently) said, and demand a "plain statement" of British policy in event of Hungarian aggression, backed by Germany, against Rumania.

Noting the visit in Berlin of Premier George Kossuth of Hungary and General Henry Wehr, chief of the Hungarian general staff, the newspaper added, "where would Britain stand if Germany supported Hungarian claims in Transylvania or Bulgarian agitation for Rumania—both Rumanian territories."

Commenting on repeated delays in negotiations to end Soviet Russia to the British-French front, The Telegraph welcomed a British statement that as a "definite step" in continuing "other means of reducing the peace."

The measure was introduced yesterday in parliament to provide £100,000 in aid of the British army.

"It goes without saying," the Telegraph said, "that the rearming of Poland, Turkey, Rumania and Greece is a matter of vital importance to our own national defence."

DISTURBANCE AT LETHBRIDGE JAIL WILL BE PROBED

Disturbance at the Lethbridge jail on Friday morning involved 100 men, who barricaded themselves in the jail and refused to eat their breakfast, will be investigated by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works.

Mr. Fallow, accompanied by an official of the attorney general's department, will go to Lethbridge Monday to make inquiries regarding the disturbance, which lasted about half an hour.

A verbal report on the proceeding has been received by Mr. Fallow from Warden Blake.

Following the disturbance, the men were placed in the cell block. No punishment will be meted out pending investigation of events surrounding the disturbance. Royal Canadian Mounted Police were called in by Warden Blake.

Complaints arose over the food during the breakfast hour. The men barricaded themselves in the mess room. Police were called in and in half an hour all was quiet. Although tear gas bombs are available at Lethbridge, none was used.

Japan At Second Year Of War Fails Pacifying Chinese Nation

By CLARK LEE
Associated Press Foreign Staff
SHANGHAI, July 7. - The storm of war raging over China reached its second anniversary today with no signs of abating. China, though terribly punished, fights on.

The government has been driven more than 1,000 miles from the coast. A third of her population and area, including her richest provinces and most of her modern machinery of industry, commerce and communications are in Japanese hands—some 500,000 square miles with 170,000,000 inhabitants.

Japan's place the Chinese military dead at 1,300,000. Neutral aid to the Chinese army of some 150,000 men.

More than 50,000 Chinese have been driven from their homes or reduced to destitution.

With the fall of Hankow last Oct. 25, the end of nearly 18 months of war, the phase of major army operations—an almost unbroken series of Japanese victories—ended.

Now it is a test of endurance and nerve, of China's will to resist against Japan's ability to withstand the constant drain of money and men and the nervous strain of pursuing final victory.

Clearcut victory for either seems unlikely under present conditions.

China cannot now master the offensive strength to drive Japan out of the Asian mainland.

Without greatly increasing her present army of some 1,500,000 men, Japan cannot risk pushing farther into China's interior to crush General Chiang Kai-Shek's forces.

China expects to win on fighting for five, 10 or even 20 years, hoping the struggle will cause Japan to collapse internally.

Alberta Crops Give Promise Of Exceeding A Farmers' Hopes

Only Slight Damage in Edmonton Division Done By Hail—Haying Is Due At End Of Week

WINNIPEG, July 7.—Conditions have been generally ideal for crops during the past week. Warm weather with ample moisture has caused rapid progress. Damage from hail, grasshoppers and other pests is almost non-existent.

Present indications point to the best crop in years, according to the weekly crop report of the department of agriculture, Canadian National Railways.

Alberta's Calgary division reports weather mostly warm with light showers, providing ideal growing conditions. Hail in the vicinity of Twining, Swallow, Three Hills, Alton and the Drumheller valley did considerable damage.

Average height of wheat is 20 inches, some standing and some to be cut. No damage from pests reported. At present the general outlook is very satisfactory and the best during the past ten years.

In central Alberta, Edmonton division weather has been satisfactory. Some hail reported in certain localities, but no serious damage.

OIL PIPELINE RATES CUT BY BOARD ORDER

Implements Recommendations Of McGillivray Royal Commission

Effective as from July 3, pipeline rates on movement of petroleum and petroleum products from the Turner Valley field in Calgary have been reduced, according to an order of the Board of Commissioners.

Mr. Ernest F. McGillivray, minister of trade and industry.

This reduction is interpreted as an order of the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners and implements following recommendations of the McGillivray Royal Commission, which investigated the oil pipeline industry.

Commenting on the reduction, Mr. McGillivray said: "The immediate effect of the reduction is to save the refining companies, having a stable, safe business, some $1,000,000 a year."

The saving business is extraordinary and is likely to last for some time.

Both Can Win

The city public school board and the taxpayers' association are at loggerheads over the proposal to build a new school in Glenora. The board has decided the school is required and that the present structure is a financial burden. The taxpayers, with equal truth, that taxes are high already and should not be raised if it can be avoided within reason.

One point both sides seem to have overlooked is the possibility of getting the new school without any increase in taxation. This possibility is real, not fanciful. If the city council understood the refunding of the city's bonded debt, the refunding agreement provides for, the saving should make possible a substantial reduction in taxation besides permitting the building of the Glenora school and other necessary capital undertakings.

The city is paying interest rates ranging from 4 1/2 to 7 per cent on its outstanding bonds. But under the agreement it is entitled to buy in some or all of these high-rated bonds; which could be done by marketing a new bond issue carrying interest rates in keeping with the present value of money. The city board and the taxpayers' association might join forces to urge council to get busy and do some refunding in this way. Then the board could build its new school, and the taxpayers could get reduced taxation.

The Tax Also Counts

An oil-man, giving evidence before the McGillivray Commission, drew attention to one fact that does not get the attention it deserves when the price of gasoline is under discussion. He pointed out that from 1925 to the present, tank gas—line dropped in price from 32 cents to 23 1/2 cents, including tax. But in the meantime the tax had gone up from 2 cents to 7 cents. Without taxation the price would have dropped from 30 cents to 16 1/2 cents. While the commission has been cutting the price the legislators have been raising the tax, with the result that tank gasoline now costs 5 cents more than it would cost if the tax had not been raised, though 8 1/2 cents cheaper now than in 1925.

Of course taxation of some kind had to be raised if highways were to be built and built up to the higher standard required by increased traffic, heavier types of trucks and buses, and the more exacting demands of motorists. There is no general complaint from car-owners that the tax is too high, and none is likely if expenditure on highways is to be kept going. But in fairness it should be noted that the oil companies do not get all the car-owner pays, nor as high a proportion of what he pays as they got fourteen years ago. While the increased oil production costs and prices, the taxes have absorbed more than half the reduction. We can't have high-priced highways and cheap gasoline in a country where population is far from dense.

Alberta Needs the Benefits

The deputy governor of the Bank of Canada is to confer today with members of the Provincial Government, on the subject of whether the Central Mortgage Bank is to be allowed to operate in Alberta. If the conference results in adjustments of provincial legislation, this will give residents of Alberta the benefits of the new deal in relation to mortgage debts and future loans. Under the Central Mortgage Bank scheme, an existing mortgage must be reduced to a maximum of eighty per cent of the present fair value of the property, while the interest rate on a farm mortgage must be cut to 5 per cent, and on a town mortgage to 5 1/2 per cent. On mortgage loans made in future, the maximum interest rate cannot be more than 2 per cent in excess of the average yield of Dominion perpetual bonds.

There is no province where revaluation of mortgages and reduction in interest rates are more needed than in Alberta; and none where an assured supply of cheap loan money for future development is more necessary. But the loans are in fact not obtainable in this province, and there is no prospect that they will become so unless through the operation of the Central Mortgage Bank or some other similar scheme which will make loans available on a regulated interest basis.

Under this plan the public credit is to be used to meet "the public need," in respect to reduction of present mortgage debts and the restriction of interest rates on future mortgage loans. Nowhere is that need more real than it is in Alberta.

Welfare Organizations to Co-Operate

A campaign is being started today to raise funds, by popular subscription, with which to carry on the work of the newly-formed Social Agency Council. The Council is not just another addition to the numerous organizations already doing charitable and welfare work in the city. It is designed as a clearing house for these bodies, through which they can keep in touch with each other, exchange information, and co-ordinate their efforts.

The organizations will maintain their identities and carry on their respective activities as heretofore, but through the Council will have the advantage of knowing what the others are doing and not doing. The hope is to thus prevent overlapping of activities, and also prevent the leaving of "gaps" between the field of one organization and those covered by others.

Without such co-relation it has been found that sometimes needy families had been entirely overlooked, while others were being cared for by two or more organizations at the same time. The object in linking up the groups is to secure a more uniform extension of aid, make the widest possible use of funds contributed by the supporters of all the bodies, and see that one or other assumes definite responsibility for each known case of need.

It is estimated that $5,000 per year will be needed to operate the Council effectively. This is a small premium to pay for assurance that the many thousands of dollars raised and distributed by dozens of welfare organizations each year will accomplish the best possible results. The canvassers will seek subscriptions on a three-year basis. They should get a cordial reception from all who want welfare work carried on in a more efficient way.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Some of the Canadian scrap iron shipped to Japan to make bombs to kill the Chinese, is coming home at last. Two millionaires from Vancouver have been victims of Japanese bombs. With the crash injustice that marks events in life, neither of the victims had shared in the blood profits. What an effective argument to demonstrate moral guidance in the universe, if only those who profit by wars and preparations for war, were the victims.

The first of the naval enquiries into the sinking of American, British and French submarines, has not yet been reported, but the evidence thus far given makes it certain that no finding of sabotage will be made. From the evidence of the sinking of U.S. sub, Squalus, and the sinking of the French sub, the evidence is clear to the coast, the ship.

NO SABOTAGE: Vipers agree that water poured in from the main engine room ventilating duct. Least.

Doyle said that the air induction system—actually the surface ventilating system for the main engine—was the weak point in the sub, and the direct cause of the Squalus disaster.

Naval men were the first to decry the suggestion of sabotage. Visitors to submarines are few and closely watched. Sabotage would only be possible by a member of the crew. These are men specially chosen for the work, and well-known to their fellows. Men take risks in committing sabotage, but in peace-time they do not deliberately seek death. Such would be the case were a member of the crew of a sub to disable his mechanism.

Let us hope that the enquiries into the disasters to the British and French subs will effectively clear the vicious suggestion that the deaths of the crews were planned.

"Dapper Dan" Collins, noted confidence man and international swindler, made an odd plea the other day before being sent down at the age of 59 for a sentence of from 15 to 30 years. His last offence was a particularly mean and profitable one—praising out a couple out of $300 "Dapper Dan's" by threat of exposing the husband as an embezzler.

Chief of the police for years had been "outwitting others, so-called respectable people, who themselves were thieves at heart." The description Collins gave of himself as "a last crime, but it does fit some of the wealthy people whose names are mentioned in connection with the Philippine Islands fraud, now being tried in New York. A couple of brokers, a film producer, a member of the Philippine Assembly and a Wall St. operator are charged with getting millions from wealthy people in society, Hollywood and the underworld. They sold bonds in the default railway concern on assurances that President Taft and 1900 $2,000,000 bribe to pay off the bonds at par. It is unlikely that Quizon had done any such thing. It was he who started the trouble by announcing that the government had no intention of buying the securities. The assemblyman, Felipe Buencamino is accused of taking $50,000 in cash and 200 of the bonds for helping the alleged swindlers.

An illuminative element in the evidence is that the accused, in the case of the rich bankers, made a point of stressing that the redemption of the bonds was to be effected through corruption politics. That was the bait they hit on, but that a commentary on modern business morals.

"The only thing wrong with Socialism," said the Socialistic Bernard Shaw, "is the Socialists. He should have known of what he spoke. The C.C.P. of British Columbia, where they are a force in politics, and the C.C.P. of several M.L.A.s in Vancouver, held their Convention in the coast city last week. Such SOCIALISTS plan-speaking among friends who never heard of the Socialists. You have become embedded in a morass of suspicion and distrust. It is a good thing that the public is listening to this convention. I don't think anyone would visualize less intelligence than that shown by some people here."

Cause of the solidification of the refusal of the convention to allow elected members to serve on the executive. The rank and file fear the leaders gain control of the party. After the meeting they agreed to let M.P.s on the executive—there are only three of them—but wouldn't let the M.L.A.s, who are more numerous, to become eligible for office. The convention exercised its control by selecting the House leader.

In one thing they showed a fine spirit of tolerance. In view of several having secured two offices of emolument, and of others who are faithful to procure two offices of emolument, the forbidding any member of the C.C.P. to hold more than one alaried office was widened. Mayor Telford, who is an M.L.A., promptly cut himself out of the London of the Opposition too. The generous offer was declined.

The C.C.P. is becoming more practical with experience.

ON THE AIRWAYS

Both when at home and in Florida, I dwell along regular airways and at stated hours I can hear the mail and passenger planes passing on their lawful occupations. One comes roaring above me while I pen these lines, and another follows.

These man-made eagles of the air give me a strange sense of fellowship with the world outside my immediate ken. They somehow lift me out of myself and absorption in my own little life. I may be sequestered, but life is moving on, in every way and every day. Others are travelling while I may not get on my feet, but they are riding on the wings of the morning, to fulfil varied errands.

So I am aware of isolation and pettiness by the sense of the world's on-going which comes to me in the swirl of the motors. And I am reminded that, whatever the personal state of mind, the efforts of God's angels are moving, above me and about me.

Thou hast put all things under his feet: O Father; and on earth and in the air, on the sea and beneath the deep, Thine are the things. Amen.

While considerable sympathy is being expressed in some quarters for the return of the former African colonies to Germany, it may be of some significance to consider what Hitler has written in the Nazi "Mein Kampf" about the negroes who are the inhabitants of the African continent. He writes:

"One hears from time to time that a negro has become lawyer, teacher, doctor or the like. This is a sin against all reason; it is a criminal luxury to train a born semi-lap to become a lawyer. It is a sin against the Eternal Creator to train Hottentots and Kaffirs to intellectual professions."

In a recently published volume, "Judgment on German Africa," George L. Siver, the author, says: "There is no civilized power which, so late in the history of colonial expansion as the 20th century, used such gross and criminal violence in the suppression of native revolt as Germany did in the Mali-Mali and Herero wars—except Italy in Libya and Ethiopia."

If the supreme leader of all the Germans considers the African natives as "semi-apes," should that nation be entrusted with control over these people?—Calgary, Alberta.

Concentrated Tragedy

In the wake of the Spanish war are the refugees. There are 500,000 tragic ones, most of them women and children. They are huddled in a number of municipalities in France, depending for subsistence on the philanthropy of the world. How much of this philanthropy has flown to the aid of the refugees is not clear, but the numbers are now growing steadily all over the world, including Canada, to secure aid for them.

A dull throb of pain is experienced by anyone who reads the report issued by the Canadian Committee to Aid Spanish Refugees. A half million people, women and children, old and young, are crowded into camps in France, crowded into empty, forsaken, ramshackle buildings. In some towns the refugees are tolerated and given some intermittent assistance. In others they are treated as a pestilence and are kept in the larger centers where they are practically prisoners, allowed to go out only once a week, in groups under a guard.

The life in the improvised barracks is incredibly hard. All sleep on loose straw, huddled in rows on the floors. They have only the clothes on their backs and some blankets. An entire family sleeps under one blanket. Sanitation is sketchy. A few pits, hidden by burly carmen, serve as latrines for a camp of several hundred people. Demoralizing also is the absence of purposeful activity. The women would sew or knit or mend, but the materials are so scarce that they cannot. The life in the improvised barracks is incredibly hard. All sleep on loose straw, huddled in rows on the floors. They have only the clothes on their backs and some blankets. An entire family sleeps under one blanket. Sanitation is sketchy. A few pits, hidden by burly carmen, serve as latrines for a camp of several hundred people. A couple of taps running into a ditch provide the washing facilities. The filth, the stench, the spring cold and the summer heat are demoralizing.

By FRED WILLIAMS
One most interesting fact in Canadian history is how the granting of self-government brought with it suggestions from London that Canada might be given a portion of the burden of military defence, and of the gradual evolution by which that result was attained on July 7, 1948. Earl Grey, colonial secretary, by a dispatch to Lord Eglinton, making the proposal that the Canadians should, in return for autonomy, assume part of the cost of the defence of their own country. His object was, of course, to relieve the burden upon the British taxpayer, but he took opportunity to recall the gallant manner in which the French Canadian militia had defended the British military of Upper Canada had defended their country, 1812-14. With such a background, it is not surprising that the people of Canada would recognize their duty.

Canadians were not eager to take on new burdens, but, under the guidance of Cartier, they gradually recognized the need of military defence. Step by step the evolution came. The British regulars were withdrawn in the early 60's, and except for the scare over the Alabama affair, when regiments were sent back, Canada has been guardian of her own house.

It was not until 1906 that the withdrawal was complete. In that year the Laurier government took over the dominion of the Canadian navy, and since then Canada has guarded her own coasts.

The bitter fight over the Canadian navy in 1910-11 resulted in a check to Canadian naval defence, but as time went on progress was made, and now, faced by a greater danger, we are adding six units to the navy and the navy is, of course, that they will not be called into action. But at last Canada has fulfilled the dream of Grey 90 years ago.

"Dad," said the young hopeful, "is it true sleep are the stupidest animals?"
And father said: "Yes my lamb."

"How long have you been sleeping?"
"Three days."
"You are sleeping wonderfully well."
"I ought to—it took me three years to learn."

Mamma: "Did anybody ring up whilst I was out?"
"Yes! Yes! Mamma, the French Ambassador."
"Really? What an honor! What did he want?"
"Nothing, Mamma. It was the wrong number."

Mrs. Smith was relating her grievances over the garden to a friend.
"My husband is such a flirt," she complained. "I just can't trust him anywhere."
"Never mind, my dear," her friend counselled. "He's probably only reacting to type!"
"That's where you're wrong," said Mrs. Smith grimly. "He's reacting to type!"

Hello, Mummy

Editor, Dear Mummy: The arguments have passed, the bands have played, the cheering ceased, and we now go back to our chocolate politicians. When the people get ratings, they are satisfied and critical, "throw a circus." When the people want to know about money and credits, where they come from and who gets them, create a "burr" with a diversion.

An U.S. senator nominated our lovely Queen Elizabeth as presidential nominee, 1940—Carroll.

Have we no Knights Errant to give these chocolate politicians the "heat" to the tune of the old song: "Ye Britons Set the Waves Ablaze with Good and Bad, Glorious and Reign, and set up the foot of the throne" within reach of the humblest without being molested by a competent and ad unconsensu assemblies of men.

The lovely Lady won all hearts with her gracious smile and thought for others but what of this woman that flattered the heart of man? Why just the "inward soul of creation" embellished in two halves.

"Virtue and 'Motherhood' showing out of that woman's eyes."

We might get somewhere—have vented, rights and sacred rights, contrived, stripped of all special privilege and subjected to the laws of the land, and the Queen's most loyal and dutiful subjects given a chance to be well born, well educated, given words, married and live in a virtuous home with their children, with proper medical care and safe sleeping and die in peace, all by the Grace of God, made to work by a very gracious, right minded lady.

"Hello Mummy!"

Editor, June 24, 1939.

"That's a nice umbrella. Where did you get it?"

"It was a present from sister."

"You haven't a sister?"

"No, that's what it says on the handle."

"Did you hear about old absent-minded Professor Freese?"

"Why, no."

"He looked in the directory to find out where he lived and found he couldn't remember his name."

CANOE CLUB CARDS RACE FOR SUNDAY

Running Start Promises Spectacular Race for Fans This Year

Fourth annual Voyagers Club canoe race from Edmonton to Fort Saskatchewan for the Hudson's Bay Co. Trophy is scheduled for Thursday afternoon, starting at 2:30 o'clock, from a point just above the High Level Bridge.

A new departure, featuring a running start, will send all competitors away on the long grid simultaneously, resulting in a much more spectacular race for both spectators and paddler alike. Decision to adopt this feature came as a result of the inability of spectators to determine the positions of different teams in intervals and under which the winners were not known until the last canoe had finished the 30-mile grind.

FORMER WINNERS

Among those entered in the race are the winners of the three previous races, namely: Bob and Don Copeman, 1936; Ben Lange and Harry Hooty, 1937; and Len Wilson, who, teamed with Jack Williams, was the 1938 winner. Due to the absence from the city of William Wilson has as his partner this year Reg. Hault and each of the teams is determined to be the first to reach the goal.

However, other teams, among them Bert Foster and Ken McRyman, Archie Martin and Charles Kingman, Bill Stett and Jack Stett are just as confident of upsetting their rivals.

IN CHARGE OF RACE

In charge of the event is Howard Wilson, chairman of the sports committee of the Voyagers, and assisting him are Preston and Bert Wilson, Ed Hunter and Ed Howard.

Medico Weiders Troupe Centra In Senior Softball

Jumping into a lane lead in the early frame, Medico Weiders sailed smoothly along to a 15-9 triumph against the Centra last night at Boyle Street in a semi-final clash in the Senior Softball League.

The game was featured by four home runs 20 hits and 11 errors and enough other highlights to put everything into the old ball game.

Billy Jolley was the winning thrower for the Centra, tossing a shelling on the mound for the Weiders.

Fitzpatrick was using a bottle of gasoline, which he was using to start the fire at the waste dump. It was not known Friday if the bottle of gasoline exploded if he had spilled some of the oil on his trousers and then walked close to the flames.
